

10-12
JUNE

LIMA | DODOMA | LUND

POLLEN24

Towards Just & Plural Futures // Hacia Futuros Plurales y Justos

OVERVIEW PROGRAM

You can find the full programme here

Map of the conference venues at the end of this leaflet

#pollen24

Lima -8hrs Lund -1hr

NOTE: prefix LU/DO/LI indicates hybrid sessions organized from Lund/Dodoma/Lima

Slido link

Slack link

10 JUNE

Welcome

08.00-09.00

Room

Registration and Vice Chancellor's opening remarks

LRB 004D

Roundtable 1

09.00-10.30

No.

Title

Room

D038

Rethinking Political Ecologies of Commons, Enclosure and Value Struggle

LRB 004D

Break

10.30-11.00 / Computer Labs Building

Parallel Session 1

11.00-12.30

No.

Title

Room

LU192

Political Arenas of Infrastructuring African Futures

Lab 1

D045

Nature-based Solutions and Green Grabbing in Tanzania

Lab 2

D056

Institutions, Local Agency and Nature-based Solutions I

Lab 6

Lunch break

12.30-14.00 / Computer Labs Building

Parallel session 2

14.00-15.30

No.

Title

Room

D067

Experiences, Issues and Ethics of Research and Community Engagement in Protected Areas in India

Lab 1

D068

Protected Areas, Conservation and Society in Southern Africa I

Lab 2

D056

Institutions, Local Agency and Nature-based Solutions II

Lab 6

Break

15.30-16.00/ Computer Labs Building

Parallel session 3

16.00-17.30

No.	Title	Room
D066	Resources, Investments and Rural Livelihood Futures in Southern Africa	Lab 1
D068	Protected Areas, Conservation and Society in Southern Africa II	Lab 2
D022	Politics, Climate Change and Justice in the Global Majority	Lab 6

Break

17.30-17.45 / Computer Labs Building

Opening plenary session: Toward Plural and Just Futures

17.45-19.15 / LRB 004D

The official opening of the POLLEN24 conference will be held as a joint hybrid plenary with hosts at each of the venues joining a call broadcasting from all three venues simultaneously. Participants at all three conference sites will be in plenary, for Q&A during the hybrid session.

During the opening plenary, we will invite one scholar at each of the sites to give a short reflection on their experience of political ecology research in their context and what are the exciting directions they see the field heading in.

To close the opening plenary, we have a final message from the local organisers (also including logistics).

The session will be moderated by Mathew Bukhi Mabele, Mine Islar and Maritza Paredes

Speakers:

Anwasha Dutta (Chr Michelsen Institute), Adeniyi Asiyanni (University of British Columbia) and Grettel Navas (Universitat Oberta de Catalunya & University of Chile)

More details on the speakers here

Opening reception

19.30-21.30 / Computer Labs Building

11 JUNE

Welcome and registration

08.00-09.00 / Computer Labs Building

Roundtable 2

09.00-10.30

No.	Title	Room
D043	Heritage, Ontoepistemological Justice and East Africa Pastoralist Communities	LRB 004D

Break

10.30-11.00 / Computer Labs Building

Parallel Session 4

11.00-12.30

No.	Title	Room
D027	Political Ecology of Connectivity and Conservation I	LRB 004D
D061	Religion and Religious Knowledge in Conservation and Development: Past, Present and Future I	Lab 1
D052	Indigenous Rights and Marginalization Ecologies	Lab 2
LU135	Contested imaginaries? Eclectic pathways of agrarian change I	Lab 6

Lunch break

12.30-14.00 / Computer Labs Building

Parallel session 5

14.00-15.30

No.	Title	Room
D027	Political Ecology of Connectivity and Conservation II	Lab 1
D061	Religion and Religious Knowledge in Conservation and Development: Past, Present and Future II	Lab 2
LU135	Contested imaginaries? Eclectic pathways of agrarian change II	Lab 6

Break

15.30-16.00/ Computer Labs Building

Parallel session 6

16.00-17.30

No.	Title	Room
D042	The Lives, Afterlives, and Resurgence of Nature-based Solutions	LRB 004D
LI64	Decolonising the Normative foundations of political ecology I	Lab 1
LU315	Diverse Ways of Knowing the Climate: Towards Epistemic Climate Justice I	Lab 2
LU305	Infrastructure Sabotage as Future-Making I: De-/Constructive Infrastructure Sabotage	Lab 6

Break

17.30-17.45 / Computer Labs Building

Plenary session: Dialogues, Encounters

17.45-19.15 / LRB 004D

As political ecologists, we recognize that all research is political. The field of political ecology has developed in conversation with the world - through learning from social movements and activists. Contributions include (1) highlighting the political nature of socio-ecological relations; (2) through transdisciplinary and participatory action research to have real-world and real-time impact; and (3) through an evolving understanding of how different knowledges and lived experiences need to shape political ecology theorising. This plenary seeks to acknowledge and honor the voices of communities living political ecology through their everyday defense and creation of life. We invite three indigenous speakers to reflect with us on why political ecology can and should matter to creating the world we want to live in.

The session will be moderated by Vasna Ramasar, Deborah Delgado and Iddi Mwanyoka.

Speakers:

Michael Bro is Inuit, born and raised in Ilulissat Nunarput. Michael Bro is an activist, champion of indigenous rights and active in the debate on the decolonization of Kalaallit Nunaat (Greenland)

Marisol García Apagueño is a Kichwa leader from the Tupac Amaru Indigenous community and currently serves as President of the Federation of Kichwa Indigenous Peoples of Chazuta Amazonas (FEPIKECHA)

Endeko S. Endeko from the Hadzabe (hunters and gathers) community. Endeko is a community representative under the auspices of the Ujamaa Community Resource Team (UCRT)

12 JUNE

Welcome and registration

08.00-09.00 / Computer Labs Building

Documentary film

09.00-09.30

No.	Title	Room
D049	Cattle in the Community Forest	LRB 004D

Roundtable 3

09.30-10.30

No.	Title	Room
D055	Ignorance isn't Bliss: Narrowing the Epistemic Chasm between Critical Social Scientists and Conservation Practitioners	LRB 004D

Break

10.30-11.00 / Computer Labs Building

Parallel Session 7

11.00-12.30

No.	Title	Room
D035	Putting Critique into Practice: Political Ecologists as Change Agents in Global/Local Wildlife Conservation	Lab 1
D078	Pastoralism and Village Land Forest Reserves in Tanzania	Lab 2
LU255	Green Transition as Decolonization? I: Decolonizing conservation and management practices Contested imaginaries?	Lab 6

Lunch break

12.30-14.00 / Computer Labs Building

Parallel session 8

14.00-15.30

No.	Title	Room
D069	Episteme, Competition and Resource Conflicts	Lab 1
D015	Epistemologies of the global Majority I	Lab 2

Break

15.30-16.00/ Computer Labs Building

Parallel session 9

16.00-17.30

No.	Title	Room
LU315	Diverse Ways of Knowing the Climate: Towards Epistemic Climate Justice II	Lab 1
D015	Epistemologies of the global Majority II	LRB 004
LU305	Infrastructure Sabotage as Future-Making II: In-/Visible Infrastructure Sabotage	Lab 2
LI64	Decolonising the Normative foundations of political ecology II	Lab 6

Break

17.30-17.45 / Computer Labs Building

Closing plenary session: Just and plural political ecologies: Traditions and Futures

17.45-19.15 / LRB 004D

Over the last 30 years, the field of Political Ecology has grown rapidly as a result of emerging socio-ecological challenges, actions by social movements, conceptual and methodological innovation, and the diversification of voices, especially from the Global South. Three journals in political ecology – The Journal of Political Ecology/Grassroots, Ecología Política, and the Journal of the Geographical Association of Tanzania (JGAT) – invite contributions to an open conversation about "Just and Plural Political Ecologies: Traditions and Futures." We envision this as an ongoing discussion leading up to, including, and following the June 10-12, 2024 meeting of the Political Ecology Network (POLLEN). Please submit 1000-word reflections and essays to any one of the editors of the three participating journals by May 1, 2024. These statements will be published on the webpage of JPE-Grassroots with the intention that they will stimulate discussions among conference participants at POLLEN 2024.

For more information, click here to see the full Call for Papers

Map of location

